Proposal Name:

Ref:

Brief guidance on using this Comprehensive Health Impact Assessment (HIA) tool (see full guidance notes for further details)

Where the term 'proposal' is used it refers to the proposed development.

- Section 1) Start the HIA process by identifying the specific population groups (Table A) and parts of the district (Table B) that will be most affected by the proposal.
- Section 2) The next step is to provide background information on the proposal being assessed.
- Section 3) The final step of the process is to identify and assess the impacts of the proposal on health and wellbeing; and recommend what can be done to maximise positive and minimise negative impacts.

a) Impact – Consider if the proposal will have an impact relating to each of the categories listed and if this impact will be positive, negative or neutral. Assess the impact separately for the different populations affected if the impact varies for populations you have identified. Remember an explicit aim of the impact assessment is to reduce inequalities wherever possible.

Proposal has a positive impact	Proposal has a negative impact	Proposal has a neutral impact

b) Certainty - Think about how certain you are about your assessment for each category. As far as possible, decisions should be supported using available evidence. Tick the ? column if you are uncertain an impact will occur and ! if you are certain / have evidence an impact will occur.

Assumed impact. You have a gut feeling but may need to do some research.	Known impact. You know that your assessment is correct and is based on evidence.

c) Description of Impact - Note how the proposal will impact on the specific group or population.

d) Recommendation - Write recommendations in this column detailing how positive impacts could be maximised and negative impacts minimised.
